

BMS once again revolutionizes bankruptcy administration with the release of DocLink™.

IRVINE, Calif., January 26, 2011 – Bankruptcy Management Solutions, Inc. (BMS) is excited to announce the release of DocLink™, a collaborative online tool that streamlines the 341(a) meeting of creditors process, significantly increasing the efficiency and productivity of bankruptcy Trustees. DocLink™ harnesses the power of cloud computing to allow access to real-time court information and document sharing, resulting in the simplified administration of tasks and enhanced communication between all parties.

“In working closely with our Trustee clients, the BMS service team identified the need for a web-based service that brings major efficiencies to the creditor meeting process,” said Steve Coffey, Chief Executive Officer. “Trustees told us that they wanted to: quickly and easily communicate with debtors’ attorneys and other third-party professionals throughout the process, effortlessly import and track receipt of required documents and customize and distribute email notifications and reminders. According to our users, DocLink’s simplicity saves hours of time in the preparation for 341(a) meetings. BMS has always been at the forefront of creative technological solutions and with DocLink™, we are excited to bring our clients the time saving tool that they asked for and more.”

Built on a secure, fully-encrypted platform that supports all privacy, passcode and other remote management policies required by the Executive Office for U.S. Trustees (EOUST), DocLink™ transforms the 341(a) meeting process with the security and innovation that has made BMS the industry’s leading provider of software solutions for bankruptcy professionals.
